Programme Requirements

Creative Writing

Graduate Diploma: 120 credits made up of EN5101 and either EN5004 or EN5006 and either EN5005 or EN5007

M.Litt.: 120 credits as for the Graduate Diploma plus EN5099

This degree is designed to enable students to undertake a detailed study of prose and/or poetry from the perspectives of practical, creative literary skills as well as those of criticism and the historical development of literary forms. Students choose two modules.

Mediaeval English

Graduate Diploma: 120 credits from EN5011, EN5100 and two of EN5012, EN5013, EN5014 and EN5021

M.Litt.: 120 credits as for the Graduate Diploma, including EN5011 and EN5100, plus EN5099

M.Phil.: 120 credits as for the Graduate Diploma plus a thesis of not more than 40,000 words

This degree is concerned primarily with Middle English literature, while offering the opportunity for students to develop a knowledge of writings in Old English. It combines a core module (EN5011), taken by all candidates, with a range of options on major literary works and their traditions. The core module considers broader historical and cultural themes, mediaeval literary thought, and textual and editorial concerns, and provides the context for the optional modules focusing on specific varieties of mediaeval literature.

English – 5000 Level Modules – 2006/07 – September 2006

Romantic Studies

Graduate Diploma: 120 credits made up of EN5041, EN5042, EN5044 and EN5100

M.Litt.: 120 credits as for the Graduate Diploma plus EN5099

M.Phil.: 120 credits as for the Graduate Diploma plus a thesis of not more than 40,000 words

This degree is designed to provide a postgraduate level introduction to Romantic literary culture. It draws on the wealth of published material from the eighteenth and early nineteenth centuries in the University Library's Special Collections Department. Students will study the various conceptions and dimensions of Romanticism, and Romantic criticism and theory up to the present.

Scottish Literature

Graduate Diploma: 120 credits made up of EN5021, EN5024, EN5044 and EN5100

M.Litt.: 120 credits as for the Graduate Diploma, including EN5100, plus EN5099

M.Phil.: 120 credits as for the Graduate Diploma plus a thesis of not more than 40,000 words

This degree is designed to provide a postgraduate-level introduction to a range of Scottish literature. To students who have studied Scottish literature as undergraduates, it offers an opportunity for study in greater depth. As a taught degree course it is however suitable for those who have a background in literary studies other than Scottish literature.

Shakespeare Studies

Graduate Diploma: 120 credits made up of EN5031, EN5032, EN5033 and EN5100

M.Litt.: 120 credits as for the Graduate Diploma, including EN5100, plus EN5099

M.Phil.: 120 credits as for the Graduate Diploma plus a thesis of not more than 40,000 words

This degree is designed to develop critical skills through the investigation of Shakespeare's works in different cultural contexts.

Women, Writing and Gender

Graduate Diploma: 120 credits made up of EN5112, EN5115, EN5116 and EN5100

M.Litt.: 120 credits as for the Graduate Diploma, including EN5100, plus EN5099

M.Phil.: 120 credits as for the Graduate Diploma, including EN5100, plus a thesis of not more than 40,000 words

This degree will introduce students to key issues in the discussion of gender, through the detailed exploration of theoretical, critical and creative writing from the Renaissance to the contemporary period.

EN5041 The Idea of a Common Culture

Credits: 30.0 Semester: 1

Programme(s): Compulsory module for Romantic Studies Postgraduate Taught Programme.

Description: This module will explore debates about commonness and culture, taking as its focus the conflicts of the 1770s through to the 1790s as to whether 'the People', vulgar speech and popular customs were to be considered as worthy of serious representation in polite literature and society at large. We will look at: the legacy of eighteenth-century debates, popular antiquarianism and constitutional reform; debates about good linguistic usage; common land and common rights, and 1790s defences of poverty; and common law and codification. These texts raise questions about toleration, nation and non-conformity, questions which can be shown to centre around the contested idea of a common culture.

Class Hour: To be arranged.

EN5115 Women, Writing and Gender 1: Renaissance to Romanticism

Credits: 30.0 Semester: 1
Programme(s): Compulsory module for Women, Writing and Gender Postgraduate Taught Programme
Description: The module seeks to introduce students to a range of debates concerning women, writing and gender, 1500 – 1800. The set texts embrace a variety of generic forms, and reflect upon such questions as the ‘problem’ of woman’s voice, the interpretation of Genesis and the staging of the female body. Also central to many of the works is a concern with the role of woman in marriage and civic society, the importance of education, and the tension between domestic ideology and female desire. Central to these works is a concern with constructions of femininity and masculinity and in conjunction with EN5112, the module will also examine current critical debates surrounding the cultural configuration of gender.
Class Hour: To be arranged
Teaching: Two hour seminar.
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 100%

EN5116 Women, Writing and Gender 2: Victorian to Contemporary

Credits: 30.0 Semester: 2
Prerequisite: EN5115
Programme(s): Compulsory module for Women, Writing and Gender Postgraduate Taught Programme
Description: This module continues the chronological survey of debates surrounding women, writing and gender begun by EN5115. The module examines continuity and change in constructions of gender across the period 1800 – 2000, beginning with the ongoing significance of the fallen woman and the problem of female desire. Students will be introduced to key critical readings of nineteenth-century women’s writing before moving on to consider the emergence of the ‘new woman’ at the fin de siecle. In the twentieth century the module will consider the impact of the First World War on women’s writing, and the work of modernist writers will be examined alongside ‘middlebrow’ and popular fictions. Finally students will examine a range of contemporary writers whose rewriting of history and myth engages with current debates in gender theory.
Class Hour: To be arranged
Teaching: Two hour seminar.
