Modules

Normally the prerequisite for each of the following Honours modules is entry to the Honours Programme(s) for which they are specified, as well as any additional specific prerequisite(s) given.

General degree students wishing to enter 3000 modules and non-graduating students wishing to enter 3000 or 4000 level modules must consult with the relevant Honours Adviser within the School before making their selection.

Ancient History (AN) Modules

AN3020 Principles and Techniques in Archaeology

Credits: 30 Semester: 1
Prerequisite: Entry to Honours Archaeology and Ancient History or Honours Mediaeval History and Archaeology, or Honours Divinity or Honours Biblical Studies

Anti-requisite: AN3034

Description: This module, which draws on archaeological material from around the world, is divided into two sections. The first is a series of seminars and lectures on the central practical concerns of archaeology: the way in which the type of excavation affects the resulting evidence; methods of studying sites and artefacts; how to publish archaeological material, and the importance of conservation. This will give a general grounding to enable students to understand archaeological reports, and to apply this understanding to other parts of the Honours degree. The second part will address the important contribution of theoretical archaeology to the discipline, while also elucidating the practical applications and relevance of theory.

Class Hour: 10.00-11.00 am Tuesday, 2.00 – 4.00 pm Thursday.

Teaching: One lecture and one two-hour seminar.

Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 50%, 3 Hour Examination = 50%

AN3034 Approaches to Ancient History

Credits: 30 Semester: 1

Prerequisite: Entry to Honours programme in Ancient History

Anti-requisite: AN3020

Description: What makes an event in history an event? What role does plot play in narrative history? What problems arise from approaching history as 'text'? Do literary texts and sub-literary texts (e.g. inscriptions, papyri, shopping lists) tell the same story? These questions engaged writers of history in Greece and Rome, and continue to engage historians today. This module will examine the role of narrative in ancient history and the theory and practice of historiography in selected Greek and Roman texts. It will also look at the impact of debates in historiography, from the 1960s to the present, on the study of ancient history. Among other topics, the module will focus on time and tense, foresight and hindsight, chaos and plot, and fact and fiction. Students will acquire a broad range of skills that will enable them to read ancient historians closely, critically, and knowingly.

Class Hour: 10.00 – 11.00 am Tuesday, 2.00 - 4.00pm Thursday.

Teaching: One lecture, one two-hour seminar.

Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 50%, 3 Hour Examination = 50%

AN4108 The Disintegration of the Roman Empire

Credits: 30 Semester: 1

Availability: 2008-09

Description: This module examines the transformation of the Roman Empire from a political unity extending from Britain to the Euphrates into a collection of independent kingdoms under Germanic rulers covering Western Europe, while the East remained united under an emperor based at Constantinople. It studies administrative structures, the societies and economies of city and country and the supposed internal problems of the empire. The second part analyses military problems, federates and the rise of the independent kingdoms in the fifth century AD.

Class Hour: 11.00 am - 1.00 pm Tuesday

Teaching: One seminar.

Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 50%, 3 Hour Examination = 50%

Classics – Honours 2008/09 – December 2008

AN4117 Art of the Roman Empire

Credits: 30 Semester: 2

Availability: 2009-10

Description: This module will examine the art of Italy and the provinces of the Roman Empire between the last century BC and the fourth century AD. It will include consideration of monumental art and also private art in a variety of media such as sculpture, wall paintings and mosaics. The module will look at issues such as the employment of art by the state, at the domestic contexts of art, and the artistic treatment of themes such as myth, historical events, death and sexuality. Special attention will be given to particularly rich case studies including Pompeii, Dura-Europos and Roman Britain.

Class Hour: To be arranged.

Teaching: One two-hour seminar.

AN4121 The Ancient City of Rome

Credits: 30 Semester: 2

Availability: 2008-09

Description: This module examines the history and archaeology of the city of Rome from its earliest beginnings to the 5th century AD. Several themes are pursued through, in particular the view of Rome as a centre of power and patronage, the capital of empire and residence of kings and emperors. Rome's physical development, the problems of feeding and administering such an immense ancient city, the architectural and artistic implications of rulers' aspirations, and the urban religions are all explored.

AN4130 The Roman Army

Credits: 30 Semester: 1

Availability: 2008-09

Description: This module will present material for the history and archaeology of the Roman army from the Early Republic through to the Late Empire. Students will study a series of themes, including institutional development, expansion and defence of the Roman empire, the army and political culture, the army in battle, soldiers within Roman society, the archaeology of self-identity, and the Roman military economy. Source material will include historical and epigraphic texts, archaeological sites and finds, and Roman iconography. The Roman army was the first truly 'professional' standing army in European history. It permeated Roman economy and society, and has subsequently fascinated historians, soldiers, political scientists and artists up to the present.

AN4132 Archaic Greece

Credits: 30 Semester: 2

Availability: 2008-09

Description: This module deals with the origins of the Greek city state, with the period that saw the beginnings of Greek literacy and literature, of Greek cities and Greek architecture, of Greek societies and in short Greek civilisation. No contemporary history survives of the period, but it is rich in archaeological material, much of it the subject of impressive recent analysis, and a great deal of poetry survives that deals with, among other things, warfare and love, democrats and tyrants, athletics and other religion. The module is designed to allow students to explore this key period through a combination of archaeology and history and to get involved in the current arguments about why ancient Greek civilisation began the way it did.

AN4145 The Archaeology of Roman Britain

Credits: 30 Semester: 1
Availability: 2009-10

Description: This module will explore the Roman period in Britain through the archaeological record of towns, landscapes, military installations, cults, artworks and artifacts, combined with literary texts and sub-literary sources. Emphasis will be placed on Britain's relative place within a wider Mediterranean empire, and within an Iron Age nor European world. Topics studied will embrace the period from first Roman contacts during the 1st century BCE through the weakening of central government in the 5th Century CE. The geographical scope includes the whole of these islands, including Ireland.

AN4146 The Supremacy of Greece: Athens and Sparta 479 - 362 BCE

Credits: 30 Semester: 1
Availability: 2009-10

Description: Between 479 and 362 BCE Athens, Sparta and later Thebes and Thessaly contested the rule of Greece through imperial expansion and ideological dominance, leading to both constant warfare as the states struggled for power, and huge progress in philosophy and the arts brought about by the force of competition. This module studies the fifth- and fourth-century empires of Athens and Sparta and their effects on the Greek world at large. The period is exceptionally rich in sources - the histories of Thucydides and Xenophon, Athenian tragedy and comedy, inscriptions, coinage and art - and the module uses these to investigate themes such as political development and dissent, the relations between Greeks and outsiders, and the expression of ideological dominance.

AN4147 Government and Society under Diocletian

Credits: 30 Semester: 2
Availability: 2009-10

Description: This module considers aspects of constitutional and social history in a key period of Classical Antiquity - after the chaotic decades of the mid-third century and before the adoption of Christianity. The timescale is deliberately narrow (c.30 years) to enable detailed appreciation of the most important developments and issues. The variety of source material is wide (literary, archaeological, art-historical, legal, numismatic and documentary); this will consolidate established interpretative skills and introduce some less familiar disciplines. Students will be encouraged to marshal this range of evidence in identifying the balance between continuity and change under one of the Roman Empire's greatest leaders.

AN4148 Death and burial in Rome, Italy and the Western Provinces

Credits: 30 Semester: 2

Description: The attitudes, beliefs and rituals surrounding death are as important for understanding a society as those associated with everyday life. This module will explore the archaeological, textual and epigraphic evidence for the treatment of the dead in the Roman world (c. 200BCE - c. CE300) and examine how this evidence can be used to explore issues such as disposal practices, memory, religion, and identity. The module investigates how a variety of activities associated with burial were manipulated by the living in order to negotiate their own identities and place in society, as well as reflecting the profound social and religious changes that took place from Republic to Empire, and during the early Christian period.

AN4149 The Archaeology of Minoan Crete

Credits: 30 Semester: Either

Availability: 2009-2010

Description: This module examines the archaeology of Minoan Crete from its beginnings to the crisis at the end of the Late Minoan I B period and rise of the Myceneans (around 3000-1000 BCE). The approach to the study of this prehistoric culture will be through a range of resources, primarily their artefacts and architecture such as frescos, pottery and religious paraphernalia as well as palatial structures, villas and tombs. Different methodologies will be called upon to reveal aspects of Minoan society such as the organisation of the Minoan states and palaces, religion and art, trade and administration and relations between Crete and neighbouring regions such as Mainland Greece and the Cyclades. Key sites include Knossos, Phaestos, Mallia, Gournia, Myrtos, Armeni, Mycenae and Thera.

AN4150 The Rise and Fall of Carthage

Credits: 30 Semester: 2

Availability: 2008-2009

Description: This module focuses on the history and archaeology of the city of Carthage from its foundation circa 814 BCE, to its destruction by the Romans in 146 CE. The module will examine the growth of Carthage from a colony of Tyre to the capital of a western empire stretching across Africa from modern-day Libya to the coast beyond the Pillars of Hercules, and in Europe from Spain through Sardinia to Sicily. The module will climax with an investigation of the great conflict with Rome, which ultimately ended in Carthage's destruction. Throughout, students will be introduced to the main protagonists of Carthaginian history, including the legendary Hannibal and his equally famous elephants. This module strives to provide students with a broad picture of life in ancient Carthage, encompassing aspects as diverse as urbanism, rural settlements, agriculture, trade, politics, religion and warfare. Students will therefore be required to engage with political theory, cultural, social and economic ideology and military history. One of the particular attractions for the study of Carthage is the opportunity to engage with the material culture (including sculpture, amphitheatres, theatres, bath-houses, residential quarters, mausolea, cisterns, oil presses, forts and fortifications) and this will form a particular focus of attention.

AN4999 Dissertation in Ancient History

Credits: 30 Semester: Either

Availability: Available only to students in the Second Year of the Honours Programme.

Anti-requisites: CL4999, CL4998, CL4997, CL4996, LT4999, GK4999, GK4998

Description: This module provides the opportunity for students to carry out a sustained piece of work on a topic essentially of their own choice, with supervision by a member of staff. The dissertation may relate to any aspect of ancient history, but the topic must be approved by the Head of School. The dissertation will be completed within one semester, and the maximum length is 7,500 words, exclusive of quoted material, appendices and bibliography, or 10,000 words including them. Dissertations must be submitted no later than the last day of revision week for the semester.

CL4412 The Gods of Empire

Credits: 30 Semester: 1

Availability: 2008-09

Description: This module will examine the religions that competed and coexisted in the early Roman Empire. The chronological centre will be the second century AD, a period in which Christianity first becomes visible, in which Diaspora Judaism, Mithraism and the cults of Isis and the Syrian gods are richly documented, and for which epigraphy and art provides a very full picture of the festival culture of ancient cities and new foundations alike. There will be a particular emphasis on establishing what habits of thought, ritual and representation united this world, and on how religions were differentiated within it.

CL4413 Logos, Nature, and Psyche: the Origins of Western Thought

Credits: 30 Semester: 1

Availability: 2008-09

Description: This module will study the central ideas and cultural significance of the major thinkers from the Presocratic period of Greek thought (including the Milesians, Xenophanes, Heraclitus, Parmenides, Pythagoras, Anaxagoras, Empedocles, and Democritus). Among the concepts and issues that will receive particular attention are: the cosmos as a unified object of understanding; nature as an active system of principles and creative forces; the difference between mythical and rationalistic models of the world; competing paradigms of the physical and metaphysical foundations of reality; the status of human soul/mind, of thought, and of language; the development of human societies and of religious/political/ethical values.

CL4416 Responses to War: Civic Drama and Athenian Culture

Credits: 30 Semester: 1

Availability: 2008-09

Anti-requisite: GK4102

Description: This module will examine Athenian tragedy and comedy in the light of the fact that they were written for a city which was at war for most of the fifth century. The Athenian dramatic festivals will be contextualised in terms of the identity, duties and values of the Athenian citizen-soldier and his militarised society. The module will focus on plays by Aeschylus, Sophocles, Euripides and Aristophanes which stage and discuss the effects of war, violence and the nature of justice, military duty and heroism. Students will focus on the language, imagery and stagecraft of these plays and their relationship with earlier poetry at the same time as they set them within the Athenian context. The module will also look at the way in which twentieth century poetry and drama have returned to Greek drama in order to address the contemporary politics of warfare and violence.

CL4420 Fame, Tradition and Narrative: Homer's Iliad

Credits: 30 Semester: 1

Availability: 2009-10

Description: This module will give students the opportunity to study Homer's celebrated martial epic, the Iliad, in translation and in detail. It will consider the relevant social and cultural-historical questions which are prompted by this tale of heroic savagery and suffering: why might archaic Greeks have needed an epic like this? Why is the Homeric conception of the heroic so fraught with conflict and so obsessed with honour, memory and power? The module will also analyze and interpret the epic's rich poetic texture and 'oral-derived' style (formulae, similes, type-scenes...); it will explore the character of its heroes and their relationship with divinity. For all its depictions of battle and slaughter the Iliad is a poem about language as much as action and participants will consider the complex rhetoric of heroes who fight with words as well as swords. Finally, the module will ask how and why famous artists and poets of the modern era have returned to the Iliad's ideas and imagery. The module could be usefully combined with CL4416 Responses to War: Civic Drama and Athenian Culture.

CL4421 The Ancient and Modern Novel

Credits: 30 Semester: 1

Availability: 2009-10

Description: The formation of the modern novel has a long (and still often unacknowledged) tradition of ancient novel-writing lying behind it. This module examines the seven surviving Greek and Latin novels of the Roman period (and their many fragmentary counterparts), with their brilliant and challenging stories of sex, magic, adventure, passion and everyday life. It looks at the emergence of the genre against the background of earlier literature, and views the novels within their social and cultural contexts. It also analyses the reception of ancient novel traditions within a wide range of post-classical contexts up to the present day (focusing mainly on modern novels, but also on film); and asks how they relate to novel-writing in the modern world.

CL4426 Geography and Travel Writing in the Ancient World

Credits: 30 Semester: 2

Availability: 2009-10

Description: This module will explore the evolution and different uses made of geography, cartography and travel writing from the poems of Homer to accounts of Christian pilgrimage in the 4th century AD. It is broadly chronological in its structure, but will tackle specific themes along the way, including the organisation of knowledge, the politics of map-making and geographical exploration, geographical and topographical responses to empire, anthropology and ethnography, and the role of fantasy and imagination in ancient travel writing. Wide-ranging in scope, it will balance general overviews with detailed examination of specific case studies, and will bring together material evidence and texts, and little-known authors and some of the canonical "classics", in order to examine some of the ways in which Greek and Roman writers, thinkers and politicians viewed and tried to structure the worlds in which they – and others beyond their borders – lived.

Class Hour: 11.00 am Tuesday, Thursday.

Teaching: One lecture and one seminar.

CL4429 Death and Dying in Ancient Greece

Credits: 30 Semester: 2

Availability: 2009-10

Description: Two things are said to be inevitable in life: death and taxes. This module will look at the former in the context of the ancient world, an environment in which, for all the cultural achievements for which Greece and Rome are celebrated, mortality rates were, by modern standards, shockingly high. A variety of materials and approaches will be used to look at perceptions, representations and realities of death and dying in antiquity. What constitutes a heroic death, a philosophical death, a pitiable death or an untimely death? How do the varieties of deaths relate to the values of the society at large? What responses to death did the ancient Greeks devise? Was it possible to survive death, and if so, in what form? The focus will fall primarily on Greece, but Roman material will be introduced where it is appropriate, as will comparative material from other societies around the world.

CL4432 Latin Literature and Roman Emperors

Credits: 30 Semester: 2

Availability: 2008-09

Description: This module will explore the relationship between Latin literature and the Roman Principate from the late 30s BCE to the end of the first century CE. It will examine the impact which different emperors may have had upon literary production during that period, and also the ways in which different authors not only reacted to but also shaped wider responses to individual emperors and to the Principate more generally. The module will focus on three key periods of the early Principate (the ‘Augustan Age’, Nero’s reign, and the transition from Domitian to Nerva and Trajan – with glances at Tiberius too) via four core texts (Virgil, Aeneid VI; Seneca, De Clementia; Tacitus Annals IV; and Pliny, Panegyricus 1-95), but it will also take in a range of other texts along the way. Students will thus be able to compare a variety of authors and genres, and detect patterns and developments in literary reactions to different emperors. This module aims to give students a fresh perspective on Rome’s early Principate, and also to tackle some big literary issues: for example, what kind of impact can poetry or plays actually have on politics? Were authors during the Principate ever free to write what they really thought? And what roles did/does the reader play in the dialogue between authors and their rulers?

Class Hour: 9.00 – 11.00 am Friday

CL4433 Religions of the Greeks

Credits: 30 Semester: 1

Availability: 2008-09

Description: This module will examine the range of religious practice and experience in Greece primarily between ca 500 and ca 300 BCE. The civic and political roles of religion will be considered, from local heroes to panhellenic festivals, as will the role of religion in the home and in the life-cycle of the individual. Divination and healing-cults will also be discussed. Attention will be paid throughout to questions of method and interpretation, with regard both to the handling of ancient evidence and to the relative merits and demerits of the competing modern approaches. The overall aim is to attempt to understand a key element of ancient Greek mentality.

CL4436 Alexander the Great

Credits: 30 Semester: 2

Availability: 2009-10

Description: Alexander the Great's life and career have exercised an enormous influence - both on the subsequent history of the Hellenistic and Roman worlds, and on the later imagination of artists and writers. This module will ask how much we can really know of Alexander's aims and career, through detailed examination both of the sources for his life and their literary and historiographical models. Topics will include: the origins of ruler cult, Alexander's army and the battles of his campaign, his alleged attempt to fuse east and west and other 'last plans'. The module will look, finally, at some of the modern representations of Alexander - in scholarship, film and literature.

Class Hour: 9.00 am Wednesday.

CL4441 Classical Greek Tyranny

Credits: 30 Semester: 1

Availability: 2008-09

Description: Why were ambitious and wealthy men and women able to seize power in classical Greek states? Why did so many states turn their backs on democracy in the fourth century and choose monarchic rule instead? Using the works of Plato, Aristotle, Xenophon and Diodorus, this module examines the tyrant dynasties of the classical period, and attempts to explain the political, social and economic factors that led to a resurgence of tyranny at this time. It also documents the response of Greek political thinkers to these events, and challenges traditional interpretations of the resurgence of tyranny, and its place in the history of the Greek polis.

Class Hour: 9.00 –11.00 am Wednesday

Teaching: One two-hour seminar.

Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 50%, 3 Hour Examination = 50%

CL4443 Roman Leisure

Credits: 30 Semester: 2

Availability: 2008-09

Description: This module will deal with collective 'public' leisure activities such as spectacula and circenses, and also with leisure activities in the private sphere including dining and bathing. That division is purely convenient and activities like gambling and feasting as well as the public ramifications of the private pleasures of emperors reveal the difficulties of insisting on a rigid division between public and private. Students will be encouraged to decide what the term 'leisure' might mean, with reference to the study of its use in history writing from Veblen to Plumb and beyond, and with reference to the semantic range of Roman terms such as otium. Roman leisure will be set in its political, social and religious contexts. Leisure will also be used as a means of revisiting familiar topics such as cultural difference, through study of the spread of bathing, gymnasia and gladiatorial games and also social cohesion through examination of patterns of segregation and participation in collective leisure.

Class Hour: 9.00 – 11.00 am Friday

CL4444 Pleasure, Goodness and Happiness: Hellenistic Ethics

Credits: 30 Semester: 2

Availability: 2009-10

Description: This module will explore the ethical thought of the Hellenistic period, a key phase in the development of Graeco-Roman culture. We shall examine some of the most sophisticated and influential moral theories of antiquity, principally those of the Epicureans, Stoics and sceptics. The core text will be Cicero's On Moral Ends. The module will include the following topics: the nature and value of pleasure; friendship and society; the fear of death; virtue and vice; happiness; human development; moral psychology; life without beliefs. All primary texts will be available in English translation.

Class Hour: To be arranged.

Teaching: Two seminars.

CL4445 Women in Ancient Societies

Credits: 30 Semester: 1

Availability: 2009-10

Description: This module studies women and gender in Greek cities, including Athens in the fifth century BCE, and in the Roman Republic and Empire from different perspectives. It will consider representations of women, for example, Homer and Virgil; the Greek tragedians; epigraphy and burial monuments; legal and forensic evidence; and medical treatises. It will look at women in the context of ancient families and city communities, marriage, children, ritual and religion and the existence or otherwise of outlets for 'individual' fulfilment.

Class Hour: To be arranged.

Teaching: One two-hour seminar.

Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 50%, 3 Hour Examination = 50%

CL4446 Picture this: Ecphrasis in Classical Poetry

Credits: 30 Semester: 2

Availability: 2008-09

Description: This module will consider the development of classical ecphrasis (literary description of works of art) from Homer through to Late Antiquity. Through a series of Greek and Latin texts in translation, consideration will be given to questions of genre, narratology and literary history. Authors will include epic poets such as Homer, Apollonius, Vergil and Quintus Smyrnaeus, and others such as Hesiod, Aeschylus, Catullus and Ausonius. There will be opportunity both for close literary criticism and for broader analysis of the relationship between classical art and literature; where appropriate, visual material will feature in the course.

Class Hour: 9.00 – 11.00 am Tuesday

Teaching: One two-hour seminar.

CL4447 Greek and Roman Epic

Credits: 30 Semester: 2

Availability: 2008-09

Anti-requisite: CL4401

Description: This module will explore, through close reading and comparative study, some major epics of ancient Greco-Roman culture. With a range of reference from Homer to Flavian Rome, the module will focus in particular on three works that attempt to distort, subvert and transform the 'traditional' epic form - Apollonius' Argonautica, Ovid's Metamorphoses and Statius' Thebaid. Examining the many critical approaches and scholarly trends that have shaped influential responses to these works, the module will also consider the changing nature of heroism, the role of gender and genre, and the historicity and cultural impact of these three very different epics.

CL4449 After Virgil: The Aeneid and its Reception

Credits: 30 Semester: 2

Availability: 2009-10

Description: This module will explore, through close reading and comparative study, what made Virgil the 'Classic of all Europe' in Augustan Rome itself and in the two thousand years following the publication of the Aeneid. Focussing on particular 'hot spots' of Virgilian appropriation - the epics of Dante and Milton, the Early modern drama of Marlow, and selected poetry and prose of the twentieth century - this module will examine not just what makes the Aeneid susceptible to such a remarkable reception-history, but also what the theory and study of 'reception' can offer to a discipline of Classics and our own understanding and criticism of the ancient world.

Class Hour: 9.00 - 11.00 am Tuesday.

Teaching: One two-hour seminar.

Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 50%, 3 Hour Examination = 50%

CL4452 Knowledge and the World in Hellenistic Philosophy

Credits: 30 Semester: 2

Availability: 2008-09

Description: This module will examine theories of knowledge and the natural world in Hellenistic philosophy. Is knowledge of the world possible? If so, how is it attained? What is the world - and what are we - made of, and has it - and have we - been made by intelligent design? Does the correct account of the world undermine the belief in human responsibility? The module will include the following topics: skepticism; perception; scientific method; cosmology; God; soul; fate, free will and responsibility.

Class Hour: 4.00 - 5.00 pm Tuesday and Thursday

Teaching: Two hours.

Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 50%, 2 Hour Examination = 50%

CL4453 Greek and Roman Science

Credits: 30 Semester: 1

Availability: 2008-09

Description: Was ancient science really science? When did ideas we take for granted, such as the sphericity of the earth, become generally accepted? When did the divide between scientific and non-scientific modes of thought, or between 'science' and 'humanities', become current? This module will attempt to answer these and other questions, by looking in detail at some of the key sources in Greek and Roman 'scientific' writing. The chronological ambit of the module will stretch from the pre-socratic philosophers in Greece, up to the Renaissance reception of the ancient ideas and techniques.

GK3021 Greek for Honours Classics 1: Special Option

Credits: 30 Semester: 1
Prerequisites: Pass at grade 11 or better in GK1002 and in LT2004
Anti-requisite: GK2003

Description: This module is for students who, having taken Latin in both of their first two years, but only begun Greek in their second year with GK1001 and GK 1002, are entering Honours Classics in their third year. It consists of 4000-level analysis and essay work together with consolidation of the student's prior knowledge of the Greek language, practice in translation skills, and training in techniques of literary analysis. The module will concentrate on the study of narrative poetry (e.g. Homer) and prose dialogue (e.g. Lucian) and will aim to foster an awareness of the interrelationships between later and earlier periods of Greek.

Class Hour: 10.00 - 11.00 am 3 days a week (Tues – Fri).

Description: This module is for students who, having taken Latin in both of their first two years, but only begun Greek in their second year with GK1001 and GK 1002, are entering Honours Classics in their third year. It consists of 4000-level analysis and essay work together with consolidation of the student's prior knowledge of the Greek language, practice in translation skills, and training in techniques of literary analysis. The module will concentrate on the study of pastoral poetry (e.g. Theocritus) and erotic fiction (e.g. Longus) and aims to foster an awareness of the ways in which Greek poetry and prose can share language, strategy and themes. It will focus particularly on the Greek literary inheritance and manipulation of bucolic commonplaces and discourses of desire.

Class Hour: 10.00 - 11.00 am 3 days a week (Tues – Fri).
Teaching: Three or four classes.
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 50%, 2 Hour Examination = 50%

GK4102 Greek Tragedy

Credits: 30 Semester: 2
Availability: 2009-10
Anti-requisite: CL4402, CL4416

Description: This module increases the student's familiarity with Greek tragedy. Plays of Aeschylus, Sophocles and Euripides are prescribed for detailed study, and students learn to address questions of content, context and staging in prepared texts, to translate passages from unprepared texts, and to address wider dramatic and generic issues.

Class Hour: To be arranged.
Teaching: One seminar and one tutorial/lecture.
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 50%, 3 Hour Examination = 50%

GK4103 Greek Comedy

Credits: 30 Semester: 1
Availability: 2009-10

Description: This module explores the nature and development of Greek comedy from Aristophanes to Menander. A range of literary, dramatic and theatrical issues will be discussed, as well as the relationship of comedy's themes to the patterns of Athenian society and culture. Students will learn to interpret aspects of comic technique and details of language and metre, to translate unprepared texts, and to tackle larger questions of dramatic structure and characterisation. Students will also acquire an understanding of the historical evolution of a major poetic genre. Set texts will include one complete play each of Aristophanes and Menander, as well as parts of several other works by both playwrights.

Class Hour: To be arranged.
Teaching: One seminar and one tutorial/lecture.
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 50%, 3 Hour Examination = 50%

GK4105 Greek Rhetoric and its Representation

Credits: 30 Semester: 2
Availability: 2008-09

Description: This module gives students the opportunity to translate and perform detailed critical analysis of Greek prose texts of the classical period which are concerned with the nature, development and representation of rhetoric and sophistry. It also requires students to address broader questions concerning Athenian culture's social, moral and political response to the development of an 'art' of persuasion.

Class Hour: 2.00 - 3.00 pm Tuesday and Friday.
Teaching: One seminar and one tutorial/lecture.
Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 50%, 3 Hour Examination = 50%

GK4109 Greek Literature in the Roman Empire

Credits: 30 Semester: 1

Availability: 2009-10

Description: The first to third centuries AD was one of the most fertile periods of Greek literary production (and has been an exciting growth area of recent scholarship). This module samples a range of genres, paying particular attention to detailed appreciation of specific works: the speeches and novelistic dialogues of the controversial and colourful orator/philosopher Dio Chrysostom; the irreverent satirical and comical writing of Lucian; and the works of Philostratus, who offers us such a vivid portrait of his own contemporary culture through his biographical writing. It also addresses a range of broader questions: how far are these texts influenced by their social and political context, especially by the continuing Roman rule over the Greek east? What relation do they have with classical literary traditions which they draw on and transform in such original ways? And how are we to account for the extraordinary denigration of this period's literature within so much of the scholarship of the nineteenth and early-twentieth centuries?

Class Hour: 9.00 am Tuesday and 9.00 am Thursday

Teaching: One seminar and one tutorial

Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 50%, 3 Hour Examination = 50%

GK4110 Imagining the Symposium

Credits: 30 Semester: 2

Availability: 2008-09

Description: This module will explore the symposium, a key cultural institution of the ancient Greek world, through its representation and dramatisation in both poetry and prose. The texts studied, which were produced for performance at symposia and/or designed to evoke the mentality and preoccupations (alcoholic, erotic, political, religious, and cultural) associated with sympotic gatherings, will range from the lyric and elegiac poetry of the archaic period, via the two 'Socratic' Symposia of Plato and Xenophon in the fourth century, to the continued thematisation of the symposium in Hellenistic epigrams. The module will also make some supplementary use of pictorial evidence for the history of the symposium, paying comparative attention to the roles of poetic and visual material within sympotic culture.

Class Hour: 12 noon - 1.00 pm Tuesday and Thursday

Teaching: One seminar and one tutorial.

Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 50%, 3 Hour Examination = 50%

GK4113 Greeks and Others: Ethnography and Identity in ancient Greek Literature

Credits: 30 Semester: 1

Availability: 2008-09

Description: Exploring Greek identity through representation of non-Greeks was a prominent preoccupation of Greek literature and culture across many centuries. This module is focused around close reading of a set of key ethnographic texts: Herodotus, Histories and Philostratus, Life of Apollonius of Tyana in prose, and a selection of extracts from Homer, Greek tragedy and Hellenistic poetry in verse. In the process it also addresses wider questions about conceptions of Greek identity from the archaic world through to the early third century CE.

Class Hour: 2.00 – 3.00 pm Tuesday and Thursday

Teaching: Two hours.

Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 50%, 3 Hour Examination = 50%

GK4114 Hesiod and the Near East

Credits: 30 Semester: 1

Availability: 2008-09

Description: Cosmological upheavals, successional conflicts, sexual tensions and divine displacements are among the ingredients which make Hesiod's Theogony such a dynamic and fascinating text to read. The module is structured around close reading of Hesiod's Theogony, working in depth on the literary effects and thematic structures of the text. In addition, it takes a wide-ranging look at some of the contexts of the Theogony, covering, amongst others, Hesiod's Works and Days, Homer's Iliad, Aeschylus' Prometheus Bound, Hericlitus and Empedocles. It also covers a range of Near Eastern texts (in translation), including the Epic of Gilgamesh, discussing to what extent the Theogony was influenced by Babylonian creation mythologies.

Class Hour: To be arranged.

Teaching: Two seminars.

Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 50%, 3 Hour Examination = 50%

Classics – Honours 2008/09 – December 2008

LT4211 Latin Letters

Credits: 30 Semester: 2

Availability: 2009-10

Description: This module studies the genre of epistolography through the selected letters of the three Latin writers Cicero, Seneca and Pliny. The aims, methods, style and subject-matter of each writer will be studied and compared, as will their different personal, political and cultural backgrounds. Letters from other authors and periods will be used for comparative purposes.

Class Hour: 11.00 am Tuesday and 11.00 am Thursday.

Teaching: Two meetings per week.

Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 50%, 3 Hour Examination = 50%

LT4213 Roman Satire

Credits: 30 Semester: 1

Availability: 2009-10

Description: This module explores the emergence and evolution of Roman Satire. Its core texts are selected Satires by Horace, Persius and Juvenal, but it also examines the beginnings of Roman Satire in the second century BCE, and takes in other, later Roman satirists along the way. Close reading of the primary texts forms a key component of the module, but we also home in on some of the recurring themes of Roman satire so that students can compare the approaches of different authors and analyse the development of the genre over time. Broader issues are also tackled, such as the purpose of satire (was it always moralistic?) and the relationship between satirical writing and society.

Class Hour: 11.00 am Tuesday and 11.00 am Thursday

Teaching: Two meetings per week

Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 50%, 3 Hour Examination = 50%

LT4214 Latin Philosophical Writing

Credits: 30 Semester: 2

Availability: 2008-09

Description: This module will explore a tradition of philosophy which has often been considered 'secondary' or 'derivative', namely the writing of philosophical works in Latin. This module aims to evaluate Latin philosophical writing in its own right. Taken as a whole, the Latin philosophical corpus present an impressive record of cultural assimilation and innovation. We shall see how, from the Late Republic onwards, Roman philosophy engages with debates current in the Hellenistic philosophical schools, Romanising them in the process, and placing them in the context of world order under the Roman empire.

Class Hour: 9.00 – 11.00 am Wednesday

Teaching: Two hours per week.

Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 50%, 3 Hour Examination = 50%

LT4215 Senecan Tragedy

Credits: 30 Semester: 1

Availability: 2008-09

Description: This module will explore in Latin and translation a selection of Senecan Tragedy, the 'dark side' of Seneca the Younger's literary output. It will focus in particular on three classic 'anti-heroes'; the Atreus of Seneca's Thyestes, the eponymous Medea, and the tyrannical Nero of the pseudo-Senecan Octavia. The module will examine the influence of Greek and Roman tragic and epic antecedents, set the 'nefarious' poetics of Senecan drama in and against the context of Seneca's philosophical writings, and consider the political resonances of this Neronian literature. Through study of the Octavia, we will explore the cultural impact of Seneca's tragedies and examine the potent 'afterlife' of Senecan drama in revenge tragedy more generally.

Class Hour: 11.00 am – 1.00 pm Wednesday

Teaching: Two hours per week.

Assessment: Continuous Assessment = 50%, 3 Hour Examination = 50%
